

PRESS RELEASE

Artist Open Studios

NORTHWESTERN R.I. ARTISTS TO SHARE THEIR PROCESS AND ART

Artist Open Studios will happen Saturday, November 6th, 2021 from 10am to 4pm. This is a time for the public to get a personal glimpse into the studios and lives of local artists featured on this year's tour. It will take place in the towns of Foster, Glocester, and Scituate, Rhode Island.

Artist Open Studios is a FREE family event that offers an opportunity to learn about artists and their studio environments. A big “Thank you!” to the Scituate Public Library, as well as all our kind sponsors, for making this event possible!

Artist Open Studios is a unique experience where artists open their work spaces so that people can learn a lot about the artist... how they create, the source of their inspiration, and even why they create. Studios range from old, renovated barns to new rustic barns to custom-designed studios which are attached to their homes.

We are celebrating our 21st year!! Come see local artists displaying their creations. Also, you can view our updated online video presentation on our website, produced by artist member photographer John Femino.

Use our handy code at the bottom, or use our address, www.artistopenstudios.org, to link to a downloadable map, and view examples of work and additional artist information. This year there are eight terrific artists participating. Welcome back Ed Andrews metal sculptor, and a welcome to new artist, Kristin S. Street, painter-sculptor.

Sharing the beauty and energy of the visual experience with the public is a joyous and calming break for both artists and visitors. If you would like additional information, call 401-241-7725. We hope to see you there, and thank you from the artists of AOS!
